Sometimes the effort and all the energy doesn't pay off in the short term, but in the long run everything will show up. Poker teaches a person many things, such as focusing less on immediate results and more on the processes themselves.

The Bratislava stop of the Winamax Poker Open series attracted a number of prominent names in world poker to Bratislava, including the Spanish professional Leo Margets. The owner of a WSOP bracelet and a number of tournament successes exclusively shared with us her experiences of being part of the Winamax pro team, revealed what she likes most about poker and what she thinks is most important for eventual success!

To begin with, please introduce yourself.

"I'm Leo Margets, a professional poker player. Among other things.

I've been playing poker for about 16 years, so I'm probably an exception in this area because most people my age don't play poker that long. As a person, I am very curious and like to learn new things. I think that's a good thing in this area because poker players need to keep improving and learning. The main reason I'm still playing is that I like this lifestyle."

What do you like most about the lifestyle of a poker player?

"I like that I can be my own boss. Poker is very meritocratic. Sometimes the work doesn't pay off in the short term, but it definitely pays off in the long run. So it teaches a person a lot of things like focusing less on immediate results and more on getting things done. I also like the freedom that this lifestyle offers. If someone is responsible and has discipline, it is a perfect job. It requires a lot of time, but you organize it yourself. And I generally like to be out of the system and not tied to any company or anything."

In Bratislava at the Winamax event for the second time. How do you feel here?

"Yes, I am here for the second time. It's very emotional because I usually play bigger events with a bigger buy-in. But when I play these mass events with people, some of whom are playing maybe their first tournament, the atmosphere is amazing. It's more fun than competition, although it's actually both. It's great when it comes together. Sure, poker is important, but those people also come here for the adventure, even if they're not competing to win. Besides poker, there are many other activities. It's such a fun friendly event. And also when you're at a table with people who are new to poker, that feeling is contagious. And that's hard to achieve after all these years."

Did you find some time to see Bratislava?

"That's one of the downsides of poker. Even though we travel a lot, we don't see much. When I started, I always got up to see more, but now I don't have time. But I hope to make it right this year."

How do you feel about your position as women in poker? Do you feel like anything has changed since you started?

"When I started, 2008-2009, I thought that over time more women would play poker as more attention was paid to it and women knew how to get into it. But now after all these years, there is still the same percentage of women in poker, something like 5-10 percent. There are different opinions as to why more women don't play poker. I think it's about preferences. Just as more women do nursing and more men do engineering, for example. It's fine as long as there are equal options for them. But I never felt that I was at a disadvantage in poker. Poker is simply meritocratic, a person shows his worth while playing."

So you feel that there is equality between men and women in poker.

"Yes, I think so. We can have interesting debates about why men are more inclined to poker than women. That, for example, they have a predisposition to have a lower "loss aversion" than women, which is very important in poker. They are more aggressive, they feel more confident under pressure. But I think that's something we're taught. The evolutionary part, when men were hunters and women took care of resources, certainly plays a role. Even today, our brains are somehow set up. But it is clear that women who start playing poker have the same opportunities as men."

I know

you won one WSOP bracelet. Can you say what is more valuable to you, money or a trophy?

"There's always a fine line in poker between a financial win and a title/trophy. I play poker for money, so that's what I focus on. But honestly, the moment I won the WSOP bracelet was incredible. You can play cash games and other formats, but for me, tournament poker is the closest analogy to a competition. And it's more about the fame than the money."

What are your next plans? Do you have any goals that you still want to achieve?

"It's important to have goals in poker. But from my point of view, they should be the ones I have in my own hands. Of course I want to win more bracelets and big tournaments. But when I set goals, I focus on the things I can control - study more hours, focus more. And it can result in more wins. Winning a bracelet is great, but it's more of a dream than a goal. I can't control whether I win the bracelet or not, but I can control how much I put in, how much I study and play."

Coming back to Winamax, what does this collaboration give you as an ambassador?

"I am lucky to be in such a team. The atmosphere is great, you get infected by the positive energy of others. Poker is very individual, when a person travels he is often alone. I'm an introvert and I'm fine with it, but being a part of something is very satisfying. I spend time with very intelligent people, I have enriching conversations with them."

The WPO Bratislava stop is just ending, where can we see you next?

"In a few weeks, I'm going to the same Winamax event in Madrid. It will be similar there, but people there are completely crazy excited, they are playing such a tournament for the first time, they will meet professionals at the table. This is special about poker. There aren't many other areas where a complete amateur can meet a professional at the same table. For example, you can't go to a tennis tournament if you don't qualify. Anyone who has money to buy-in can play poker. And it's amazing that you can play at the table together with the best players, meet them through the break. And after Madrid, the last poker trip of the year awaits me, the Winamax event in Marseille. And then, as for December, I'm still undecided about Vegas or the Bahamas."

Leo, thank you and we wish you the best of luck in the future!

Time of Crisis: China's Men's Soccer Team Suffers a Crushing 7-0 Defeat to Japan

A humilhante derrota de 7-0 sofreu a equipe de futebol masculino da China para os arqui-rivais do Japão, na noite de quinta-feira, marcando um novo recorde baixo para uma nação obsessiva pelo futebol, onde o esporte tem sido afligido por escândalos de corrupção e performances cada vez piores.

Jogadores das principais ligas europeias lideraram o caminho para o Japão, com Wataru Endo do Liverpool e Kaoru Mitoma do Brighton marcando no desmonte no Estádio Saitama, ao norte de Tóquio, nas eliminatórias finais da Copa do Mundo de 2026 da Ásia.

"Isto é humilhante", escreveu um fã da China nas redes sociais da plataforma Weibo, onde a derrota tornou-se um tópico cashback 1win tendência, gerando mais de 460 milhões de visualizações na manhã de sexta-feira.

Que a derrota tenha vindo das mãos do Japão adiciona à agonia para os fãs chineses. As rivalidades esportivas entre os dois países muitas vezes carregam as conotações de cashback 1win relação histórica, tensa devido a pontos dolorosos - entre eles a brutal ocupação do Japão na China na primeira metade do século 20 e as disputas atuais sobre a soberania das Ilhas Senkaku, que a China chama de Diaoyus.

Um Dia Que Marcará a História

"Este é o dia mais vergonhoso para o futebol chinês", escreveu outro fã no Weibo após a derrota, chamando-o de "um dia que sempre doerá os fãs chineses" e "uma dor que nunca poderá ser apagada".

Outro fã zangado exigiu o despedimento da equipe, escrevendo: "É sem esperança... Deveria ser abandonado!"

Ao longo da última década, os oficiais de futebol da China - assim como o líder Xi Jinping - expressaram ambições de entrar nas camadas superiores do esporte, e a liga doméstica da China se tornou um ímã para jogadores famosos.

Mas nos últimos anos, a Super Liga Chinesa perdeu seu brilho - cashback 1win parte devido a um enfraquecimento geral da economia e à resposta extremamente rigorosa do governo à Covid - enquanto a equipe nacional lutou.

Neste ano, a equipe caiu na fase de grupos da Copa Asiática no Catar, sem marcar um gol cashback 1win três partidas.

Compostando esses fatores está um escândalo de corrupção de grande porte.

Em março, tribunais chineses condenaram alguns dos oficiais de futebol mais proeminentes do país a prisão como parte de uma campanha anticorrupção.

Aos ensnared pela investigação incluíram o ex-chefe da associação de futebol Chen Xuyuan e Li Tie, um ex-jogador da Premier League Inglesa para o Everton e ex-técnico da China.

Durante o jogo de quinta-feira, o Japão - classificado cashback 1win 18º no mundo - pôde contar com vários rostos familiares jogando cashback 1win ligas de futebol de alto nível no exterior.

Além de Mitoma, Endo e Minamino, no placar estavam Daizen Maeda, do Celtic, Junya Ito, do Reims, e Takefusa Kubo, que joga na Espanha com o Real Sociedad.

O ex-jogador Fan Zhiyi, apelidado de pioneiro por ser um dos primeiros chineses a jogar nas ligas inglesas na década de 1990, disse que a derrota era previsível, mas não cashback 1win tal extensão.

"É difícil para os fãs aceitar que perdemos assim", escreveu o atual treinador de futebol no Weibo, adicionando que o resultado ilustra "o Mundial está muito longe".

Falando após o jogo, Zhang Yuning, um atacante da China, reconheceu a derrota, mas prometeu melhorar no próximo jogo.

"Necessitamos abordar isso para que possamos jogar melhor quando estivermos cashback 1win nossa grama nativa", disse.

A equipe da China, classificada cashback 1win 87º no mundo, jogará contra a Arábia Saudita de Roberto Mancini cashback 1win 10 de setembro cashback 1win Dalian.
